CEO's Statement

Policy makers in our country have always looked at visually impaired people as liabilities, as people who need to be provided for and looked after. There have been enough instances in the past that support my seemingly tall claim. Back in 1995 the Persons with disabilities Act was passed by the parliament in a couple of minutes without much fanfare or even discussion. When employers look to hire visually impaired people they always look at hiring people with partial or low eyesight in order to fulfill the reservation mandate and overlook totally blind people, who might be better qualified to do the job. If you were to visit government offices or banks, you would find people who have been hired as officers doing assignments much below their qualifications and pay grade. All these examples bring to the fore an attitude and a tendency people have to look at the half empty glass rather than the half full.

We at Score Foundation realize and recognize that the focus has to be on the half filled part of the glass, which means we need to look at abilities rather than the disability. Communities need to invest in including their disabled members and nations needs to invest in their disabled population so that they become part of the national workforce. We are suggesting that by looking at the positive talent in visually impaired people we would be changing the conversation around disability in the country in the coming 15 to 20 years.

Over the years, we at Score Foundation have been working and creating awareness amongst blind people and their families, as a result of which a number of visually impaired people have called us up wanting to move on with life to be empowered and able to contribute. Unfortunately this has thrown up the harsh reality and paradox that exists in our society. In the name of infrastructure very limited facilities are available to educate, train and nurture visually impaired people. It is not realistic for the government or the NGO sector to create infrastructure for blind people across the country, and the need of the hour is to think universal and inclusive.

The country is progressing at breakneck speed and so too are sectors like education, infrastructure, transport, banking and others. However even as these sectors grow, people with visual impairment are left behind. Today we can bank from anywhere at the click of a button or a phone call, but for visually impaired population in this country, things like signing a cheque are still an ordeal. This proves that none of this so called progress is percolating down to a substantial number of people in our country.

All this means that the people of this country either don't care about people with disabilities or they don't understand enough to be able to make reasonable accommodations. I'd like to think that its the latter. The task is huge but the time has come to break away from traditional ideologies and projects, and embrace revolutionary thinking and initiatives that break free of the existing stereotypes of a life with Blindness.

Winds of Change

The last year has been very significant for Score Foundation. Not only did we complete 10 years on May 17th 2002, we celebrated the event with the launch of our 13 part TV series in September 2013.

A famous saying, attributed to the Chinese philosopher Laozi, is: “A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step”. Score Foundation took that first step on 17 May 2002, and with a decade behind us we'd like to think we have covered considerable ground and are all the wiser for it!

However looking at the large number of visually impaired people who continue to be marginalised, we still have miles to go before we sleep. We remain committed to reaching out to every visually impaired person in this country with the knowledge and information that will enable them to live a fulfilling life with blindness. Ten years ago, we started with just a website, and then along came the Hindi radio show, followed by the helpdesk, a research department, an advocacy cell and most recently, in 2012-13 we set into motion our efforts to reach out to the mainstream through our TV Serial 'Nazar Ya Nazariya'.

The show was originally conceptualized in September 2012, and made possible after Score Foundation submitted a successful application to the highly competitive 'Sightsavers Innovation Fund' funded by the UK's Department for International Development. Our application was one of 13 winners who fought off competition from over 550 other NGOs from all over the world. Nazar Ya Nazariya went on air on 21st September 2013. The show was aimed at challenging common perceptions and focusing on immense possibilities of life with blindness. Each episode of the television series was introduced and signed off by the renowned actor, Naseeruddin Shah and anchored by Harsh Chhaya, a popular television actor. The thirteen part series, was aired on Doordarshan National on Saturdays at 9.30 AM.

Reaching Out Through Workshops

At Score Foundation, we believe that ophthalmologists are in unique position of trust and influence to help visually impaired people. Often it is an Ophthalmologist who diagnoses an eye condition and breaks the news that treatment options are limited, if available at all. However, many Ophthalmologists feel helpless when a patient presents an incurable eye disorder, since all their medical training can no longer help the patient. This is where we can help.

Score Foundation offers sensitization workshops especially designed for eye care professionals in India. We look at the emotional and practical impact a discouraging prognosis can make on the patient, and take time to explore the technology and resources available to help people live full and active lives with visual impairment. In the last one year we have organized 10 such workshops in various hospitals across Delhi and Uttar Pradesh in cities like Lucknow, Kanpur and Aligarh.

Radio Show

Season 8 and 9 of our award winning Radioshow - Eyeway Yeh Hai Roshni Ka Karawan went on air this year. Both the Seasons were sponsored by Tech Mahindra Foundation and saw good response from people in terms of calls on the helpdesk.

Each season of our radioshow covers a diverse range of topics. In season 8 our content offering included, a new section called Aap ki baat where common people shared their thoughts about vision impairment. The segment featured people like, Kartik Sawhney, who is a blind student currently pursuing his bachelors in computer science from Stanford University and Anjina Bhatt mother of Arush Bhatt, who is a blind boy of 8 currently studying in School. The season also featured interviews with people like, Sanjay Dang of Noida who runs a travel agency, Dhananjay Bhole who works as a coordinator in Accessibility Research Group, Department of education extension, University of Pune, and Krishnakant Mane, Project leader for free and open source based accounting and micro financing software at IIT, Mumbai. All of whom also happen to be blind.

Some of the features in season 8 focused on topics like Concessions for the visually impaired people in Indian Railways, businessmen and self employed people who are visually impaired, over protection and attitudes of parents and society and Accessibility at home, roads, buildings, hotels, malls etc. for visually impaired people.

Since technology goes a long way in levelling the playing field and enabling visually impaired people to do all the things that sighted people can, this season we featured products such as the Tetra point adaptive mini Braille typer, which is a Braille typewriter which can be used by children and Angel pro.

Season 9 focused on topics such as Braille newspapers and magazines; daily activities such as cooking and shopping that are easily performed by visually impaired people but viewed society as problematic; and profiles of many people living with visual impairment in rural areas as well as much, much more. Season 9 of the Radioshow was hosted by a brand new Radio Anchor. Anil Srivatsa, a veteran of the media field since the past 20 years. He had launched a radio show called 'Anil Ki Awaaz', in New Jersey, USA and 'between the sheets' in India.

Eyeway SMS Channel

To reach out to more people with blindness/low-vision, their families and disability professionals with the latest news on all aspects of life with blindness, in April 2009 we tapped the cheapest & widely used digital media, the SMS. People who do not use internet and are not well networked benefited the most with subscribers getting timely alerts of useful information which was otherwise scattered and inaccessible.

We used the free Google SMS channels, where neither we paid nor our subscribers. The service increased queries on our helpdesk by 20%, alerted people about our upcoming radio shows, and what's new on the knowledge portal www.eyeway.org.

The subscriber base was 3000 strong and steadily gaining more popularity when the rates of bulk sms shot up steeply 20 times. This has led to

Helpdesk

The Eyeway Helpdesk is a vital channel through which we share information about life with blindness. After the launch of our Radio Show in 2005, we started receiving calls from people seeking help regarding various issues. This prompted us to set up the Helpdesk in 2006 to answer people's queries. The Helpdesk provides information, motivates people, counsels them and in turn links them to other organizations and professional who might be able to offer help. Our Helpdesk number is 011-46070380. Queries can also be sent in via email to helpdesk@eyeway.org.

At the end of March 2013 the Eyeway Helpdesk is halfway through its 7th year. To mark the event, we took a trip down memory lane to look at the number of people we have been able to connect to thus far. From 44 clients in 2006-07, today the Helpdesk has a total client base of 3000, with 650 new clients in the last year. From 6000 queries on June 22, 2012 we had received just shy of 8000 queries at the end of April 2013.

Our Helpdesk is the only one of its kind in India, dedicated to working towards the empowerment and growth of the visually impaired community in India. We are recently developed the Eyeway Helpdesk Management Software, which will enable us to manage information and queries of our callers more efficiently. Our dream is to be able to reach out to every blind person and his or her family, with this information, in a language and format they can access and understand.

the service being temporarily being discontinued after 4 years of service. We are currently working with volunteers to develop a more robust and cost effective method of bringing the service back.

Over the past 6 years we believe that we have been able to bring about a positive change in people's lives. This belief has been strengthened by the people who call us at Eyeway, initially coming to us with their problems, and later informing us of their success. Read about some of our success below:

CASE STUDIES

Sucharu Gupta

Getting our number from Just Dial, Sucharu Gupta called us in March, 2013. She is 32 years old and has a B.Tech in Electronics and Communication, as well as a Post Graduate Diploma in Embedded Systems. She has also worked with a software development firm.

A loving mother and wife, Sucharu had quit her job after conceiving her first baby in 2005. Around the same time she was diagnosed also with Retinitis Pigmentosa. She called the Eyeway Helpdesk as between juggling marriage, a child, her own intellectual and professional needs and a degenerative eye-condition she was not satisfied with her quality of life. She knew she could live a fuller life with vision impairment with some direction and information.

During our interactions with her, we glimpsed a dynamic woman who was trying to curb the psychological effects of a degenerative retinal disorder, and facing broader mobility and orientation issues as well as a need to productively use her time.

Within a few calls Sucharu voiced many diverse and basic doubts and queries. Issues of low-vision consultancy, functional vision, recognition of RP related characteristics, rehabilitation to use computers and tablets with the help of assistive devices, and how to get a disability certificate. Since the Helpdesk deals with such questions routinely, we realized what Sucharu was looking for was information. She was not relying on anybody for help; she wanted information to be able to help herself.

We quickly realized that Sucharu's immediate need was to make productive use of her time. The Helpdesk connected Sucharu with individuals who are living with the same eye-condition, she was provided information about computers and other basic IT courses at Saksham Daksh. We also told her about different online web forums, talking book and audio book facilities, and screen readers and their functions. Sucharu had reservations about using a cane. She did not want her family or anybody else to brand her as 'Vision Impaired'.

We followed up with her after she had joined a computer course at Saksham Daksh. She now carries a cane and feels that it is symbolic of the fact that she is low-vision and can walk on her own. As he grows up, she also wants her son to know that even though his mother is low-vision that does not change or take away from who she is. They live, they celebrate, and individually Sucharu is as strong and courageous a woman and a mother as can be.

Abdul Samad Shah

30-year-old Abdul Samad Shah from Pulwama, Kashmir got to know about us through our radio show- Eyeway Yeh Hai Roshni Ka Karwan in February 2012. He had lost his eyesight in 1977 due to Glaucoma. That year he had passed class 10th and taken admission in class 11th, however, due to poor financial conditions at home, and the search for a cure for his incurable eye disorder he idled away time till late 2012. After spending 15 years at home, his patience and frustration bubbled over, which resulted in a call to the Helpdesk seeking information about a cure for his eye condition.

When he called the Helpdesk on 8th of February 2012, he sounded very distressed and was even having suicidal thoughts. Our counselors informed him his eye disorder is incurable. We then proceeded to counsel him to seek rehabilitation. The several telephonic counseling sessions supported by live examples of our counselor's own life with blindness helped him gain some self confidence. Our Helpdesk with the support of the advocacy team assisted him in scribe's verification for railway group D post exam closer to home, for which he would otherwise have had to travel to Delhi. Over time we forged a bond of trust and respect with Abdul. Taking the railway exam boosted his self-confidence and he started venturing out independently. He also started applying for more jobs independently. He started approaching government offices and started talking to government officials seeking employment opportunities.

On 24th of December 2013 he informed us, that as a result of all his endeavours, he has been successful in getting a job as a telephone operator's in the Revenue department of his district. The case study clearly demonstrates the immense value, the right kind of guidance can create in someones life. Not only were we successful in motivating someone to have a positive outlook and regain his confidence, our counselling has enabled him to be gainfully employed and for the first time in 15 years - happy.

Research

Information leads to empowerment. And the provision of information on schemes, provisions, rights, services, and technology leads to empowerment of people with disabilities. Both central as well as state governments have formulated various schemes and programmes to provide assistance to people living with blindness, but the biggest problem is the lack of detailed information and effective utilization of these schemes.

Therefore, last year our research team set out to collect and analyze state level information regarding various schemes available for disabled people in India. The intent is to disseminate information to people living with blindness and also to analyse these schemes in the realm of development of the disabled community.

This demanded a lot of hard work, since the process of collecting information, especially when you are seeking information related to government policies is a lengthy and time-consuming process. To this effect, we exercised the Right to Information Act (RIT) requesting information from different states. We have finally collected this valuable information and are currently in the process of uploading it on our website.

Advocacy

This past year our advocacy team has been hard at work in the area of education for visually impaired people in India. A highlight of each of our projects is given below:

IEDSS

Education in India is a fundamental right of all citizens. What should be a fundamental right, however, is the right to quality education without discrimination on the basis of gender, class, race, ethnicity or disability. Towards this end, last year Score Foundation proposed a research plan to understand the operational gaps in the implementation of IEDSS Scheme in the national capital.

Inclusive Education for the Disabled at Secondary Stage (IEDSS) is a centrally sponsored scheme of the Ministry of Human resource and development, Govt. of India and implemented by the state education departments. The IEDSS Scheme looks at inclusive education of children with disability in the age range of 14+, studying in classes from 9th to 12th.

Score Foundation, has observed huge operational gaps in the implementation of the IEDSS scheme in Delhi Govt. schools during its advocacy intervention with some of the children with vision impairment, who approached us to intervene, due to a lack of equal provisions made available to them during their examination.

However even after completing the impending formalities, our request was rejected by the Directorate of Education. Not letting this deter us, in the coming year we are looking to work in the thematic area of education, for this purpose we are looking at conducting a research with 5 inclusive schools across the capital that can provide ideas for a model, for potential scale-up to both private and public schools across Delhi and potentially across India.

UNIFORM GUIDELINES

For some time Score Foundation has been battling hard for the introduction of Uniform Guidelines for Examinations taken by visually impaired students throughout India. Score foundation along with 70 other organizations formulated Uniform examination guidelines for the visually impaired individuals giving various university related and professional examination. Score foundation forwarded these guidelines to MoSJE for approval last year in April, 2012. When we did not hear from the Ministry, score foundation pushed these guidelines through CCPD (Chief commissioners for person with disability). In a November 2012 hearing at the CCPD, the commissioner ordered MoSJE, to finalize the guidelines formulated. on 25th Feb, 2013, the above guidelines were finally issued with approval of Hon'ble Minister (Social Justice and empowerment). Score foundation has remained instrumental in pushing forward the guidelines, and ensuring that the Ministry approved the guidelines.

CBSE CIRCULAR ON JAWS

Owing to complaints from our Clients, we noticed that the Circular on JAWS (screen reading software) that will help students with vision impairment to write their exams using a computer needs to be amended to include the use of easily available screen reading softwares such as NVDA, Dolphin etc. Further it also required to allow amanuensis for specific examinations where the language includes certain symbols, formulas and technical words. Score foundation requested CBSE through a written request to make the required amends to the circular.

After repeated follow ups, Score foundation filed a formal complaint at CCPD's office regarding the same. THE CCPD, issued a notice asking CBSE to immediately amend the circular and provide appropriate reasonable accommodation to the students.

Talking Engagements

In the past year our CEO participated in and spoke at 14 talking engagements across India and internationally. Some of the most noteworthy talks were at a TED X event in Bangalore, at a Christoffel Blinden Mission (CBM) Meet in Germany, at the India Inclusion Summit 2012 and at a seminar organised by FICCI and CBM at Mumbai on Employment of the disabled in corporate India. Apart from this Mr. Abraham also spoke at various colleges across Delhi University and to students at the All India Confederation of Blind.

In the words of Nobel Peace Prize laureate Elie Wiesel, There may be times when we are powerless to prevent injustice, but there must never be a time when we fail to protest". It is precisely for this reason that Score Foundation is always on the lookout for more talking opportunities. Since our work is majorly concentrated in the area of Communication, Research and Advocacy we believe that it is only by effectively communicating with people and changing their perspectives towards disability that any lasting change can be made. Our sensitization talks and workshops go a long way in motivating people to look at disabled people and their problems differently. In the past we have had great response to talks and we are looking forward to talking at many more opportunities in the coming year.

In the last year apart from sensitization workshops with Ophthalmologists we also conducted a workshop at National Thermal Power Corporation (NTPC), as a part of the a week long training program they conduct every two years for their visually impaired employees.

Pranay Gadodia, Programme Manager and Saurav Roychowdhury, Helpdesk Executives, facilitated the session, at the Power Management Institute NOIDA.

The 2 ½ hours long interaction with 35 participants, primarily dealt with the broad themes of banking, policy, insurance, transport provisions and income tax. The audience consists of blind and low vision employees of different NTPC project all over the country, aged between 25-40 years. Most of them are computer and talking mobile phone users. However since they are living in remote areas of the country not all of them are fully aware of developments in the disability sector. The session turned to be interactive, fruitful and exciting for all those present. People on both sides of the dais went home enriched, informed and aware.

Website

Project Eyeway was launched in 2003 with the launch of www.eyeway.org, a knowledge portal on all aspects of life with blindness. In 2013, 10 years after its conception the website underwent a complete revamp. Since moving to Drupal platform from Plone, the website now has a more responsive design and is more accessible using screen reading softwares. The website is also currently undergoing an overhaul in terms of updating content. We are looking into crowdsourcing as a possible means of keeping the website more up-to-date and current as well as engaging more people.

To complement the new website we have also launched a brand new Intranet for use by employees of Score Foundation. The Intranet is a means of knowledge storehouse and sharing for people within Score Foundation.

Our Philosophy

■ Vision Background

People with visual impairment are usually treated with pity and charity. Their ability and potential are not fully recognised. The focus is on limitations and not on possibilities. Consequently, they are often marginalized, ill informed, and not stimulated to explore their potential.

■ Vision Statement

It is the vision of Score Foundation that people with visual impairment will be regarded as full fledged members of family, community, and society.

■ Motto

Space for all
Contribution by all
Opportunity for all
Recognition for all
Equality for all
with dignity

■ Beliefs

- The problem is not with the eye; it's with the mind
- Disability is God given, but handicap is man-made
- Knowledge has the power to change lives
- Blind and Visually impaired people are part of the mainstream of our country the need is to invest in them rather than merely providing for them

■ Mission Statement

To realise personal independence, economic self reliance, and social inclusion for all visually impaired people in India.

■ Overall objectives

- To inform, inspire, and empower all people with visual impairment.
- To realise equal rights, responsibilities, and opportunities for people with visual impairment.
